Life's just right

A fairy tale from Maximum City.

There's a reason why Mumbai enjoys the sobriquet 'Maximum City'. It is indeed a land of extremes. Life here is stretched to its limits from the far suburbs to the chaotic city-centres.

Trade-offs are the norm and the dream home that ticks all the boxes, is like a work of fiction you read in your mind again and again. Or is it?

Matunga is home to numerous interesting achievements like having the first local train station that's entirely staffed and handled by women. Iconic cultural hubs like Ravindra Natya Mandir have hosted Legendary plays and performers.

It is a true confluence of heritage, culture and vintage charisma.

Just like the fairy-tale, Matunga is a residential story that sounds too good to be true. Believe it or not this one's very real. Matunga's central location is indeed a geographical boon that keeps you conveniently connected. As for heritage, Matunga has a rich history that dates back to the original seven islands which constituted the then Bombay Region. Owing to this rich heritage, the locality carves a unique ambience akin to that of the famed Greater Mumbai.
